There are four or five hundred negro residents of Frederick, who, with the negroes from outside, make a formidable mob. At this hour (midnight) the angry negroes are marching the streets carrying heavy sticks, and the more drunk among them cursing like demons. Some of them are declaring that they will lurn the jail and free the prisoners. The town authorities are powerless, and the mayor has ordered out the Fredericks Riflemen, a militia or ganization. These, about 100 in number, are guarding the jail and the sheriff is residence. The doorways of the jail have been barricaded. The negroes seem to direct their wengeance against the sheriff, who, they declare, did not properly try to protect Bigus from the lynching party.

Many of the negroes are smed, and bloodshed is feared before the night is over unless the riflemen keep the mob in check. The negroes who appear to be isoding the ristons demonstrations had a meeting last night at Newmarket, near here, at which they determined to hang Sheriff Derron on the same tree on Jefferson Heights from which Bigus was hanged.

FLETCHER DEAD. MARSHALL, Mo., Nov. 80.-Lee Fletcher, who was shot here last Saturday night casher of the Fidelity bank, made purchases, but the settlements were always made by E. L. Harper. These transactions began last January.

Hoyt said Hopkins gave him checks signed by himself and with these he purchased of the exchange clerk at the Fidelity bank drafts and letters of advice in favor of Green & Co., and C. J. Kershaw & Co., of Chicago. Witness said he went to Chicago the day after the wheat market broke and went to the Exchange National bank, while there he met J. W. Wilshere, Irwin and and several of the bank officials. While there he received two drafts for $100,000; each executed by the Fidelity National bank. Mr. Hoyt said he had no parsonal transactions with E. L. Harperdid not know him.

C. J. Kershaw, of Chicago, was the ne twitten the said he had been a grain merchant for twenty-five years. His testimony was admitted to identifying checks, drafts and letters of advice sent him by Mr. Hoyt and the Fidelity bank. On cross-examination he said he had no transactions with Mr. Harper. Everything was done through J. W. Hoyt and Wilshire. Eckert & Co. All drafts upon the Fidelity bank were honored.

William Wright, the young man who killed Fletcher, has the reputation of being a very nice, quiet young man, and it seems was only in the saloon to take care of his brother, who was intoxicated, and is said to have had some money on his person. As the Wrights seem to have been the parties attacked, and as they were both knocked down before the shot was fired, and as it was stated that William Wright only shot when Fletcher was about to attack him with a knife, it is not thought that anything can be done with them.

A. W. Green, of the firm of Irwin, Green & Co., of Chicago, was next called. He testified that he made purchases of wheat for J. W. Hoyt to the extent of 9,000,000 bushels. Hoyt gave security for part of the purchase in drafts and letters of advice from the Fidelity, stating that he had money deposited there to bis credit. There was over $700,000 in the Fidelity bank to the credit of Irwin, Green & Co. The defense on cross-examination again emphasized the point that the witness firm had no transactions whatever with E. L. Harper, that everything was done through the brobers named.

Robert M. Orr, assistant cashier of the American Exchange bank, of Chicago, was called to identify the crafts referred to by Mr. Hoyt.
